How To Fix a Big Mistake

Chapter 1

How to fix a big mistake

Hiccup's pov

The morning sun rose on Berk but today was no normal day.

I could feel a sleeping Toothless next to me. He decided shortly after living my house that my bed is much warmer then the rafters. I don't mind much he is a good room mate. I wish I could set here and just relax but today is a big day, today I'm going to purpose to Astird. I have everything in place I asked her family for there permission, then I made the ring at the forge, and tonight I'm taking her to the cove were I found Toothless were a table with a big meal and fire going.

With all his thinking Hiccup didn't realize the two big green eyes staring at him. "Oh, hey buddy I'm glad your awake. You know what today is right?" he says with a smile.

Toothless smiled his gummy smile and nodded his head.

"Good. Lets get busy for tonight okay." he said before getting up starting to get dressed.

3 hours latter everything looked perfect all that needs to be done is get at his house at sundown, set the fire, and set up the food.

"Okay bud I think we can meet up with the gang and go flying until sundown." he says patting Toothless on his head.

After a short flight to the mead hall he found Snotlout, Fishlegs, and the twins. Sitting next to their dragons waiting for him.

"Hey guys. Sorry I'm late... wait where's Astrid?" he says noticing his girlfriends absents.

"She's out with her other friends Thorson, Tyson, and Jessica. Don't worry she told me she wasn't going to miss your date." Ruffnut said rolling her eyes.

"Okay well then let's take to the sky and have some fun." Hiccup says trying to get the fact that the love of his life is out with the three people he hated. Tyson was a big brute who probably couldn't count two three. Thorson was just as dumb but he thought everything was his just to take and nothing could happen to him. And Jessica was shorter dark blond that can sweet talk her way out of anything. But they all had one thing in common and that was to be the first one to be in Hiccup's face about any screw up he had back before Toothless.

It was a perfect day for flying not a cloud in the sky and almost no wind the 5 riders were having a great time until Snotlout spoke up.

"Hey isn't that Astrid down there" he said and pointed down towards a clearing with Thorson, Tyson, Jessica, and Astrid.

"Let's see what they're talking about" Hiccup said starting to descend into the trees. Once all 5 have landed they listen in.

"Hey, Astrid I'm wondering how could you really be with that screw up, useless, waste of space Hiccup." Thorson said.

"Ya you should be with a guy like me!" Tyson said with a smile on his face.

"Hiccup is just a way to get my parents off my back they always wanted me with someone my age. Trust me it's just a get up." Astrid said like it was nothing.

"Bull. She's lying! If you were really not into that Hiccup you wouldn't hesitate to kiss Tyson." Jessica said.

Then just as Hiccup thought it couldn't get any worse, Astrid walked over to Tyson and planted a kiss right on his mouth. And it wasn't just a harmless kiss, no it was a very welcomed kiss between the two. At this point Hiccup couldn't handle any more of it and as if Toothless could read his mind the both launched off taking off with a loud boom. This startles both groups.

"Hey what was that!?" Thorson yelled.

"It came from the trees over there!" Jessica yelled.

The group of four started making their way towards the riders. "Let's get out of here!" Tuffnut whisper strictly. And with that all of them took off heading towards the village.

Hiccup flew as fast as he could to the cove. Once there he let Toothless burn everything that had been set up. "Come on bud lets get back home I think we should leave Berk for a while." Hiccup said with a tear rolling down his cheek. Toothless nodded his head and started to head back home.

Chapter 2

Astrid pov

After hearing the weird boom in the woods Astrid deiced to say Goodbye to her friends and head back to the village. When she got there she saw her friends Snotlout, Fishlegs, Ruffnut, Tuffnut but no Hiccup so she decided to say hi and figure out were he was. "Hey guys, whats up? Any of you know where Hiccup is?"

"Oh like you care." Ruffnut hissed at her." But the last time we saw him, Toothless and him head off to Thor knows were."

"Wait, why did he just take off?" she asked getting curious.

They all just snorted then Ruffnut spoke up again. "Maybe it was seeing you and those three low lives trashing him or you kissing one of them. Or something like that."

"You know I don't so much like my cousin, but I know he doesn't deserve that." Snotlout said

"No, please tell me he didn't see that. I..I didn't mean any of it I just didn't like being teased by my friends really." Astrid said as she realized what she had just done.

"Tell someone who cares." Tuffnut said as they all got up and left.

She just made the biggest mistake of her life and she knew it and before she knew what she was doing she was sprinting to Hiccup's house.

Meanwhile Hiccup pov

'I know what I have to do now'. Hiccup thought as he walked thought the front door of his house. The only way to get away from Astrid and all of the hurt he would take the task of going village to village spreading the word about the dragons and opening trade routes. He wasn't going to do it because of Astrid but now he doesn't see a reason not to go.

He found his dad sitting in the main room watching the fire with a bored expression. "Uhh... Dad we need to talk." Hiccup said.

"Oh, we do. What about?" Stoick said turning to face his son.

"Dad, I want to be the one that goes and spreads the word about the dragons." Hiccup said.

"You do? Whats with the sudden change of heart?" Stoick asked.

"I can't just keep staying in the safety of Berk I have to get out there and start growing up." Hiccup said trying not to let his emotions show.

Stoick then jumped up with a giant smile plastered on his face. "I'm so proud of ya son. When are you leaving?"

"Umm.. in an hour at the most. I want to get an early jump on things." Hiccup said. As he turned to go back he remembered something. "Oh, and dad this is between you and I nobody else except maybe Gobber needs to know where I went."

"Of course son. Now you better go and get ready to leave."

with a nod of his head, Hiccup took off up stairs to pack. It only took him minutes he grabbed some clothes, lots of charcoal, and a few empty journals. Then, he was ready.

Astrid pov

When she got there Hiccup was just getting on Toothless who looked like he was packed for a long trip. 'I have to talk to him' that was all that was going through her head as she screamed his name.

"Astrid, what do you want?" He yelled as she ran up to him and Toothless.

She was crying now and panting from the run to his house. "I need to... talk to you." she said trying to catch her breath.

"Alright lets talk. You lied to me, tore out my heart, and then kissed that idiot. Great talk now I'm going to leave so if you don't mind go aw-" she cut him off. "It was fake. I didn't want to kiss him I just didn't liked being teased."

"You didn't like being teased... Wow. I was teased, made fun of, shunned every day of my childhood and you didn't like being teased by your friends and then you just kiss one. Not once did I ever care what people said about me and I diffidently didn't kiss anybody else. I _loved_ you!" He yelled.

She never heard him yell before and the way he said _loved_ broke her hear. "Please Hiccup I'm sorry!" she said between sobs.

"Take it easy Astrid. Oh and I don't think I need this any more." He said as he threw a tiny black box at her feet. " Lets go Toothless." and with that they took off and disappeared.

She looked down at he feet and picked up the box and opened it. "Oh my gods." she whispered as she looked at beautiful ring Hiccup had made her. 'He was going to ask me to marry him on tonight's date' she thought to herself.

_please review. _

If you have any ideas of how the story should play out im open to suggestions. THANK YOU!

Chapter 3

Chapter 3

Astrid pov

Astrid ran as fast she could to the gang in the village center. She didn't care if they hated her they need to help her stop him before he was gone and did something stupid. Right as she walked into the village center she saw the gang and there dragons walking.

When she got to them she was the opposite of patient. "Look I know what I did was stupid and I don't care if you all hate me but we need to go get Hiccup he just took off and it looks like he isn't coming back. Please just help he with this!" she said when she finally caught up to them.

They looked at each other and finally came to a conclusion. "Okay we'll help but were still pissed." Ruffnut said for the group. Then they all hoped on there dragons and Astrid called hers. Stormfly showed up within seconds and they were all off. It wasn't long before they saw a small black dot.

Hiccup pov

The sun was just starting to set making large running orange streaks in the sky. Hiccup looked over his shoulder and expected to see open ocean but instead saw four dots starting to get closer and one of the dots was blue and yellow.

"Shit." Hiccup murmured. "Hey bud, we have some unwanted visitors lets say we lose them." Toothless looked back and saw what Hiccup was talking about then looked to his rider and nodded his head. Then, they rocketed down towards the ocean and turning so they would shoot right under the others. By the time the others realized what was happening Toothless and Hiccup were under them and going the opposite direction. When the group turned around Hiccup and Toothless were above them and the sun had gone down making the dragon and his rider almost invisible.

"Good job buddy, they won't realize what happened until they are back in Berk." Hiccup said when he saw the five dragons speeding back towards Berk.

Astrid pov

The five riders realized they had been tricked when they could see the coast line of Berk coming over the horizon. Astrid knew that Hiccup was gone and now all she could do was hope that he came back and didn't get himself hurt or killed. She could chase after him but not knowing where he was going would just end up getting herself lost and in a bad predicament. No one spoke as they got back to the island they just went home having nothing to talk about.

Astrid sat on her bed looking out her window. If she would have just used her head she would probably be sitting here cuddling with her soon to be husband, but she didn't and now he's gone and who knows he may never come back.

_okay i don't feel that this was my best chapter but i think this will be the last chapter before i get really deep into the story so i have been kinda setting it up with these three chapters. i think i want to go into a 1st person to go deeper into the feelings of the characters. spread the word about this story i want to make this thing HUGE! Lastly, i want to thank every one who reviewed keep them coming same with the ideas! _

4. Chapter 4

_I do not own HTTYD._

Chapter 4

Hiccup pov

It had been 2 weeks since Toothless and I left Berk. It had been smooth flying since we left. We just left the Bone head tribe of the south 3 days ago. Every village we go to it is the basic same thing. We arrive and are met by every warrior in the village all ready to kill at any second. Then, after I explain everything there is a slight shift from hostility to trust, but for the first few days Toothless and I would tread lightly and not make any trouble. The Bone Head tribe was a tricky situation since they are known to be the best dragon killers and fiercest warriors in these parts. At every village after a trust connection was made we would start alliance talks between the village and Berk. I would find a way to through a way of protecting the dragons into the treaty some how. After, the village would send a trading ship to Berk to trade and let my father know about the new alliance and terms of the treaty.

I have made many friends on this trip, but by far the guy I liked the most was Wilson. He was a trader that was scheduled to go on a trade run to Berk after the treaty was finished. He was a simple man but wise, and that is why I would talk to him about my problems.

One day I saw him walking along the docks and decided to go say hi. "Wilson, hey whats up?"

"Oh, Hiccup it's you. Well I am just getting the ship ready to sail north for Berk. Right after you and the chief sign the treaty I will set sail."

"Well they are sending the best then. Wilson, you need to tell my dad, when you arrive, that I am heading farther south into uncharted territory from this point on." I tell him.

"I think I can manage that. It will take me about a month to make the voyage to get to Berk so you should be well on your way. But I have a warning for you, this time of the year storms come up from the south and they mean business if you see on while flying get away from it!" he tells me.

"I will keep that in mind. Well I should get going to finish up that treaty and send you on your way. If you see Toothless point him towards the great hall." I say and start walking towards the hall, but he stops me with one last question.

"Do you have any one special maybe a girl I should say hello to for you?" He asked me.

"If anyone asks, just tell them I am alive and that should be good enough." I tell him starting to walk back to the hall.

Astrid pov

I woke up screaming and sweating from my reacquiring nightmare. Hiccup be stabbed by a sword, Hiccup getting poisoned, Hiccup drowning. Night has now become a thing of horror for me. I haven't trained since he left 2 weeks ago, it is challenging enough waking up without his arms around me or knowing I would see him sometime in that day. The worse part of it all is knowing if he is harmed in any way it is my direct fault, and I will have to live with it all my life. It was bad enough me running him out of his home, braking his heart, but if he is hurt it will devastate me to the core of my own being.

The gang I guess forgave me even though I haven't forgiven myself, but I will probably never do that. Ruffnut has been with me some night trying to get me though the night without me going into hysterics about my nightmares. We would talk about other things and I would be able to sleep for a short time. In the days I would do my best to keep a stiff upper lip and go about doing my normal routine. Fishlegs will keep me company in the part of my day when I would go and see Hiccup. We would talk about mindless things except dragons because it would make me think of him flying away on Toothless.

I get out of bed and manage to get dressed and ready for my day. I make sure I put on my necklace he gave me a few months back. I remember that day so well.

It was a casual date for us, flying our dragons and landing in a nice place to have a dinner. We landed on the side of a cliff over looking the ocean. I seem to remember more face sucking then actual eating and talking.

When we finished eating I was leaning on his shoulder looking out to the ocean talking about why we love each other when Hiccup spoke. "You know I think its our anniversary for our first date."

"_That's another reason I love you. You remember little thing most people would forget. And yes it is our anniversary." I say._

"_Well I got you something." he tells me as he reaches into his pocket and pulls out a long rectangular box._

_He gives it to me and I don't hesitate to open the box to see a shiny gold heart with H.H and A.H engraved in it, and a gold chain connected to it. I was amazed by it. "Hiccup it's breath taking. Where did u get it?" I asked him as he took it and put it around my neck. Perfect fit._

"_Actually I made it. You remember that date I said I was to busy to go on. Well now you see why I missed it." he told me._

"_Well then, this is for skipping out on our date" then I punched him in the arm. "And this is for being the best." Then we capture each others lips._

I know that what is in the box sitting unopened on my dresser was made by Hiccup's hands, but it has to be him who opens and gives me that ring.

Well it took a while but I finally got it up. thank you to everyone who had input for the story it made me rethink and helped the story. Also i am very happy to see how many people are liking, following, and reviewing. chapter 5 will be coming don't worry i wont quit on the story i just had some writers block then things got busy. Alright thank you please review and keep sending me your ideas i love reading every one of them!

5. Chapter 5

I don't own Htttyd!

Chapter 5

Hiccup's POV

The first thing I realize when Toothless and I take off from a small island we found and decided to stop and rest on, was a bad feeling in my gut that told me something was beginning. I decided to fly on thinking it was just lack of food or sleep. Father south we fly it seems like I feel better about the whole situation back home with Astrid. I've been thinking about the day I gave her the necklace all that time back. I suppose I got carried away when I decided to drop everything and just leave, but then yet again she is smart enough to figure out how I would feel about it.

This argument raged in my head for hours until I felt Toothless jerk under me. That is what woke me up from my own little world into the real world that had toothless and I flying into a huge black cloud that stretched as far as the eye could see. I could see lightning and the last glimpses of sun being swallowed by the black mass. Then what Wilson told me popped into my head "_I have a warning for you, this time of the year storms come up from the south and they mean business if you see on while flying get away from it"!_ Because of my own fault I flew both of us right into the eye of a storm. It was to late to turn and run, and it was to high to fly above so our only option is to fly right through it. The moment we entered the mass my ears popped from the change of pressure, and the temperature became unbearably cold. After 10 minutes of diving and dogging I got hit square on the top of my head by a piece of hail bigger then my fist. After that the world became fuzzy and almost distant. Now every I open my eyes I can see the water getting closer and closer. I tried to level Toothless out when I realized his tail fin was destroyed by wind and hail. At that point I knew both of us were going to die. In the last moment before I passed out I told Toothless one last word. "Sorry."

Astrid Pov

It was a beautiful day, and for the first time since Hiccup left I felt, in short, good. I woke up and did my usual routine, make breakfast, walk in the woods, come home and change then go out to see what there is to do. When I walked to the town square I ran into Gobber and he looked excited for some reason. I had to find out why. When I walked up behind him walking and said hey he jumped a little.

"Well look who is finally out and about, and on the best day to be out." he said.

"What makes it such a great day to be out? Is something going on?" I asked. Then noticed everyone was walking with haste to the docks.

"A new trader from the Bone Head tribe in the south sowed up and has things most people have never seen... And they showed up with dragons pulling there ship and on that ship was a treaty written by. Well you know who." he said as he continued walking. There have been new traders and treaties arriving here ever since he left. I had a new goal. Get what ever information I can out of the trader about Hiccup and where he is going.

When I get to the dock I can easily find Fishlegs in the front of the ship. Ruff and Tuff looking tough a chest. Lastly I saw Snotlout and others looking though a pile of weapons. With every scan of the ship I can't locate the trader or any crew. I walk away to the great hall where we have a feast and welcome our new allies, of course this is the first one I have actually dragged myself out of bed to go to. I walk in to see half of the village, the ones who have already found what they wanted, sitting and waiting for our new guests and chief to show up. I sat at an empty table towards the front to get a better look. I sat by myself for about 45 minutes thinking about things until I had a weird feeling that struck my out of no where. I was about to walk outside when the whole gang sat at my table still talking about what they had found on the ship. Shortly after the chief and new guests stepped into the hall. The hall went deadly silent then Stoick spoke. It was short and simple. "Everyone... Meet our new allies and friends." the hall broke into cheers. Then Stoick took the treaty that some have been dying to see and nailed it to a post for everyone to read. While everyone was talking to our guests I sneaked over to look at the treaty Hiccup had wrote. It was definitely his hand writing clear and easy to read but still looks like art on paper. It reminds me of the countless love letters he would write me.

While I was reading I didn't notice someone walk up next to me until he said something. "He is quite a writer. I remember when he stayed up for two nights trying to get this perfect and put everything to protect the dragons in there."

I smiled and laughed a little. "Yeah that sounds just like him." I looked at the man, there was no doubt that he was the trader. He was skinny, had black hair, and tan skin from being out at sea for so long. "Do you know how Hiccup is, and do you know where he is going?"

"He told me to tell anyone who asks to say he is alive, that's it." He told me. I guess it was the disappointment in my face because he spoke up again. "You must be Astrid."

I was shocked. Was Hiccup talking about me? And if he was what was he saying? "Yeah I'm Astrid how did you know?"

"Hiccup talks in his sleep. He stayed with me while he was with us. I pieced together who you were and I'm guessing there was a fight. Am I correct so far?" He said.

I was surprised of how quick he was. He was a smart and cleaver man. "yes you're correct. I made a big mistake and I want to fix it."

"Astrid, I have seen many things in my years of trading and one of those things is true love. By the way you look when you just say his name I can tell you love him very deeply. I can tell you that he is fine. I have no clue where he is going he just said he was going into uncharted areas. As long as he stays clear of storms he should be fine." with that he nodded his head and walked to where they were serving mead. His simple words made a huge difference. I know when Hiccup returns I will make things better.

Finally chapter 5. i know i havent updated in a while and i am so sorry. i got a new job a few months ago then the weekend i was going to write this chapter i fell of the back of my car and fractured my skull. But it is summer now so that means i have a lot more free time and i already know how the next chapter is going to go i just need to write it. Lastly, fallow, favorite, share, and review.

P.S. I still take ideas how what you would think i should put into the story... I love the fresh ideas!

6. Chapter 6

Wow, it's been a while. I had so much time to plan out the story. This might be a rough chapter i'm trying to get back into writing in story form. And let me say I am so ready for How to Train Your Dragon 2. Okay well without further to do CHAPTER SIX. And i don't own HTTYD.

Chapter 6

Hiccup's pov

I am dead. Toothless, Dad, Gobber, Astrid, and the rest my friends and family will never see my face again in this lifetime. I will never make it home, I will never fly on Toothless above Berk as the sun sets ever again.

This what was going though my head when I realized how dark it was and the fact I felt strangely warmer then expected. That when I heard a crash of a wave hitting softly on a beach. If as if I needed anything else to make me question my situation I felt my body lift then sink back down. It felt like gravity was pulling my eye lids down making it almost impossible to open them. After what seemed like hours but was in reality a few minutes I was able to open my eyes. After, the blinding bright light filtered out I could see I was on a sandy beach with Toothless next to me.

I couldn't stand, it felt like my bones were rubber and skin was made of the heaviest stone. I guess I should be happy, Toothless and I survived our nose dive into the stormy waves, but the question I had stuck in my head was, how? My answer was closer then I thought when I heard voices coming from the blind turn on the beach covered by trees and foliage. Out of instinct I shut my eyes and pretend to still be out cold. There was three voices what sounded like two males and a female.

"I don't know I still think he looks cute, and if a Night Fury would risk his own life to keep this one human alive makes me believe he has a big heart, I find that attractive." I hear the female say. If I wasn't so tired I probably would have blushed.

"humph I bet you would find eels attractive to if one washed up on shore right now." One of the males said. He sound like he might be about the size of Snotlout.

The two started exchanging small humph and huffs. That's when I heard the third one finally say something. "You both can be really stupid sometime." They both silenced and look at their college as he continued to speak. "You didn't even realize our visitor has been awake and listening to both of you the whole time. You can open your eyes I know you're awake." He said.

I was scared now, how could he have known I was actually awake. There was no reason to keep up the ruse up. As long as I can keep them from my sleeping companion, all will be good no matter what could happened. I opened my eyes slowly to see a male, about like I thought with the same basic body build that matches that of Snotlout. He had dirty brown hair and a kind of flat face. He was standing next to a pail girl who had brunet hair her face was rosy with blush probably since I heard her saying how I was cute. Then lastly was a tall, slender man with blond hair, but what got me was his storm gray eyes they looked like smoke from a fire drilling into my soul. What really got me was the what I saw only seconds after seeing the three. I noticed movement from where they had just walked from around the corner of the beach. There walked out three dragons, these dragons although different in size and color were no doubt... Night Furies.

The one with blonde hair stepped forward. "I'm Eric." he said. Then, he pointed to the girl and introduced he as Ashley, and the last one as Mason. "Now that that's out of the way, tell us whats your name and what were you do thinking you can fly through a storm like that?"

"I'm Hiccup, and to be honest I was so far out of it I didn't even notice the storm until we were in it." After I introduced myself they seemed to become more interested, like I had said something important.

Ashley spoke up. "Are you the same Hiccup that we keep hearing about. Riding the back Night Fury into battle against a Red Death, then making peace with the dragons? I mean we kinda thought with the black Night Fury, but we weren't sure."

"Yeah I guess that's what you can say. Why do you ask?" I was curious to know why these strangers knew so much about me.

"We heard about you in our travels. That why we were on our way to Berk to find you. You see we all have something in common. We were all chosen to ride Night Furies, and that makes us special for a cause." Mason says.

"And that cause would be what exactly?" I ask.

"Hiccup, even if you got the vikings to see the truth. This is still a bad world to live in if you're a dragon. We ride for the purpose of saving dragons everywhere. It's not easy but it's our duty." Ashley says.

"Hiccup, in short we need anyone we can get, and seeing as we pulled you out of the ocean I think that could be a sign." Eric says.

Could it be a sign. I mean they did save not only my life, but Toothless' as well. That can never be repaid in my mind. I owe these riders everything now. "I'm in." I say with as much resolution as I can muster at the time.

Astrid Pov

The traders were finally starting to come into the harbor after being days late. Saying a massive storm made them take another route. I was doing the usual, asking if there were any new ships or stories surfacing about my missing rider. When nobody had any new information I went to the dragon ring.

Today was when the kids got to start training terrible terrors. Since they are small and are more pet like then any other dragon it's easy to train them. There are about six kids, ages vary from 5 to 7, all of them are so anxious to learn everything they can about all the dragons, but one dragon is the most popular and that is the mysterious Night Fury.

When I arrive with Stormfly, I see the twins standing by the crate with the Terrible Terrors. All the kids are whispering and antsy to get to today's lesson. I hop off Stormfly and begin the lesson. "Okay class today we start training our first dragon. Now who can tell me what's the first step to gain a dragon's trust?" As I asked six hands shot straight up.

I picked the first person who I saw, which happened to be Austin. "You show you're not a threat, then put your hand out and wait for them to press their snout to your hand showing you they trust you." He says.

"Correct, trust is everything. You are making a bond that could mean life or death one day. It is also key to make sure you stay calm and relaxed, dragons can feel anxiety and will become hard to control." I say while walking to the crate holding the Terrors. "Now the fun begins!"

After a few hours all the small Terrors had new homes and friends. It was actually kinda cute watching all the kids run around with there new friends. They did some very basic training and will continue to bring them to training until we think it's time to step them up to the next grade. The next class will be even better when all the kids have new names for the dragons.

After flying home I decided to walk around the village and hear the new buzz. Everyone was talking about something that happened at the dock today when I was at dragon training. When I was walking I ran into Fishlegs who looked almost distant, I knew that look all too well. It was the same face I saw every time I looked at my own reflection after Hiccup left. I felt my stomach drop when I thought back to those times. It couldn't be that bad I mean it is Fishlegs he tends to over react to everything. When I walked up to him he turned almost pale. "Hey Legs, is something wrong? You look like something is eating at you."

"Astrid, I really can't say, but I think you need to go talk to Stoick. He is in the Great Hall talking to the latest trader." He said, then continued to walk on.

It would be an understatement if I said ran to Great Hall. I never even knew I could possibly move that fast. When I reached the massive doors I didn't care if my lungs were on fire, I was on a mission. When I walked in I could see Stoick talking to someone she actually knew. Wilson had almost the same expression I saw on Fishlegs and is being shared with the our chief.

Wilson was the first to speak and end the silence. "Astrid, it's so nice to see you again."

"It's nice to see you to Wilson, but you weren't expected to be back for at least a month. What made you come back?" I ask him wanting to cut to the chase.

After looking at Stoick and him nodding he spoke. "Well Astrid with you flying your Nadder I bet you have had some bumpy rides before. Well when you are farther south we have some nasty storms brew in a matter of minutes. This is why a lot of ships were late coming in. There was a big storm that we got on the on the edge of. While we on the edge we found something floating..." He looked over to the table they were standing next to. My eyes followed his gaze. I felt my world collapse when I saw what it was. Hiccup's saddle bag with the Berk crest on it. "This could have just fallen off but when I saw the construction of that saddle there didn't seem like a way to get this bag off. My theory is that he and Toothless crashed, and if that happened... I... I don't think he or Toothless could have possibly survived."

I couldn't feel anything only numbness. I didn't know how much time had passed but when I looked around, some how I had made it to the cove. My eyes sting and my body hurt I don't know what to do. What can I do, he's gone really gone. Gone as gone can be and all we have is a stupid bag. I can't do it, I can't handle what my actions have caused. The one I love is dead because of me.

I don't know when they found me, but the other riders and the chief showed up and took me to my home and got me into my bed. I guess Ruffnut stayed but I didn't even notice I was focused in my thoughts. There is nothing I want to do but lay here for the rest of my life. He is gone. He is gone. He is gone...

Getting interesting. Like i always say i love reviews and tell me what you all think. some of you can even see the ideas you gave me in the story. You are all awesome! I will be writing more now so i will see you all soon!
